Project in Chin State, Myanmar

STATEMENT OF WORK & SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS

1. Background

Home to 51.4 million people¹ Myanmar is one of the least developed nations ranked 150th among 187 nations in the 2014 Human Development Report of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). Myanmar recorded an average per capita income of US$ 1,105 in 2014, one of the lowest in East Asia and the Pacific its annual GDP growth rate was 8.3 per cent in fiscal year 2013/14;

Most of the poor in Myanmar live either in the central Dry Zone – where soils are sandy, rainfall low and population density high – or in hill tracts populated by ethnic groups, which are remote, have limited arable land or have been affected by conflict² The upland areas are largely populated by non-Bamar ethnic groups; each state and region is diverse in terms of its people, language and culture.

The Chin are of Sino-Tibetan origin and inhabit a mountain chain which roughly covers western Myanmar through to Mizoram in north-east India and small parts of Bangladesh. They are composed of a number of ethnic groups. A mountain people by tradition, perhaps 80 per cent are Christians. Combined with the difficulty in accessing the area, the living conditions of Chin State continue to degrade due to lack or inadequate support to its population. A survey conducted in 2009-10 by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) has found that Chin State remains the poorest state among the 14 Regions and States in Myanmar with seventy three per cent of the people below the poverty line. According to the survey, Chin State has the highest number of family members in each household with six people per household. As in many places of the country, the state is losing its labor force as many young people migrate to foreign countries for employment; no workforce means no production thus no production means no income.

Man-made community physical infrastructure is either non-existent or dilapidated in most areas where minority ethnic groups live, especially in Chin State where most communities are underserved, in addition to difficult accessibility due to geographic condition. There is very little information on current existence and status of community infrastructure across the country, although it is well known that good infrastructure makes it easier to deliver services, that it also creates a sustainable environment for production to take place.

As part of UN-Habitat's on-going operational activities in several townships across the country under its settlement support interventions, the Programme for Emergency Assistance to Poor and Vulnerable Community in Ethnic Minority Areas, funded by the Government of Japan, contributes to the overarching goal of the Humanitarian Response Plan 2015 to support the Government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar and local communities to ensure that the lives, dignity and well-being of persons affected by conflict and disaster are protected.

Under the ongoing programme activities, UN-Habitat is working in four townships of Chin State namely Hakka, Tedim, Falam and Thantlang for reconstruction and rehabilitation of community infrastructures through the community driven development approach applying UN-Habitat's "people's process". This approach is in support of the Government of Myanmar's people centred approach of development.

There has been a felt need for electrification by the communities in the project areas where potential of micro-hydro power (MHPs) does exist. Accordingly, UN-Habitat had commissioned a pre-feasibility level of study in response to government's request to build some MHPs.

2. Electrification in the Targeted Geographic Area

The Chin State is the most undeveloped part in Myanmar. The need of electricity in Chin rural areas remains high. Only 29.7 percent of Household's have access to electricity and almost 70% are not connected to any source of electrification as per the Housing census 2014 by the UN.

The prefeasibility level of study identified potential places where installation of MHP is technically feasible and financially viable. The findings of the pre-feasibility study were presented to the Rural Development Department in July 2017 and the Department requested UN-Habitat to commence immediately a pilot project to demonstrate the "community based approach" of Sustainable Micro-hydro power project in order not to lose the momentum of the drive for sourcing funding for other potential projects.

UN-Habitat aim to assist promote socio economic development in Chin State by transferring skills, knowledge, technology and approach transfer for sustainable Micro hydropower project in Chin state in support of the GoM's policy of rural electrification. And to begin with, it is aiming to start implementation of a pilot project while resources for more projects are being mobilized.
